

Both Ends Of The Lead Letting Go To Lighten The Load

Two Buddhist monks return to their monastery after the rains. They reach a swollen river and in front of them is an extremely beautiful lady in a delicate silk kimono, distressed because she is unable to cross the river by herself. So, the older monk scoops her up, carries her safely to the other side and the two monks continue on their way in silence. Five hours later, as the two monks reach their destination, the younger monk, literally fuming, bursts out, "How could you do it? You touched a woman. You know we're not allowed to do that!" The older monk replies, "I put her down 5 hours ago, but you are still carrying her with you." This is one of my favourite stories as it conveys so beautifully a simple yet powerful message – that the things we hold onto, bear grudges or perhaps feel angry and hurt about cloud our mind, hold us back, prevent us from being the best we can be and achieving our goals and dreams.

So what can we do about this?

Letting Go

Letting go usually involves some form of forgiveness or acceptance – whether it's yourself, someone else, a situation or even an unknown third party. The irony is that whatever you're holding onto, it's probably hurting or bothering you much more than it does anyone else.

Now this is an important point so listen carefully.

Letting go doesn't mean we condone a situation or behaviour. It's about lightening OUR load. Because when we let go of whatever is bothering us, we set ourselves free and get to reclaim that energy for ourselves.

You don't need to know HOW to let go, you just need to be WILLING. You can't change the past, but you can learn from it and change how you feel going forwards.

And remember - whatever you find it hardest to let go of is probably what you need to let go of the most!

While you may not wish to do anything about these right now, just listing what you need to let go of here will raise your level of awareness and you'll naturally begin to loosen your grip.

So, simply write a list of what you're holding onto, what slows you down, what riles you up and anything that gets in the way of you being the best you can be. Then next to each of these, write how you benefit by holding on.

If you're struggling with identifying a benefit (there must be something or you wouldn't be holding on to it), ask yourself, "What do I gain by keeping hold of this?" Perhaps by holding on to resentments, anger, hurt, you don't need to accept your part in the situation, or perhaps it stops you from feeling how hurt you really were, or maybe you get to stay in 'the right' or avoid dealing with someone.

If you need to let go of something you've done, simply ask, "What do I need to do that will allow me to let this go?" Perhaps you need to make notes in your journal of what you've learned, perhaps you need to make some kind of amends, apologise or find a meaningful way to make it up to yourself or someone else. While we can't change the past, we can make amends and learn from it.

FINALLY and importantly, imagine letting go of everything on this list. How does it feel??

About

We specialise in helping older dogs live a longer, healthier and happier life.

We are passionate about giving you the information and tools to help you take the best care possible of your dog.

What we do for Dogs ...

- Muscle Function Therapy
- Stretching, Mobilisation, Conditioning & Rehabilitation
- Laser Therapy/Laser Acupuncture
- Thermal Therapy
- Exercise and lifestyle advice for your dog

Visit www.bothendsofthe.lead.com.au and our Facebook page www.facebook.com/bothendsofthelead

©2014 by Both Ends Of The Lead. All Rights Reserved. For personal use only. Modification of this design does not void the copyright. Distribution physically or digitally (even without profit) is prohibited.